

Assignment 0: dog Writeup

eingeman

When handling a file, the program needs to `open()` and `close()` the file which it doesn't need to if reading from the standard input. This means the program will need to deal with the naming (address) when trying to access the file. Thus, this is an example of the naming used in a computer system.